Special: Laser Toner

Manufacturing Process: Full control over the process

- Precise specifications are used for the development of Laser cartridges: Testing of at least 9 original cartridges Pre-selection of components and testing of different combinations (toners/drums)
- Collection and sorting of empty cartridges
- Dismantling: Virgin cartridges (cartridges that have only been used once) are dismantled and the potentially recyc lable parts are sorted by type. Components that cannot be re-used are set aside, sorted by material (metal, powder and plastic) and then sent to our partner, who recycles 100% of the waste received in an ecological manner.
- Cleaning: The dismantled cartridges are cleaned in an ionizing tunnel.
- Machining: This stage, which consists in creating specfic machine tools, is needed to optimise large-scale production.
- Filling: The toner is transferred into the cartridge; the amount used is measured out to the nearest gram.
- Reassembly: Each cartridge is reassembled following the steps and checks described in the operating procedure.
- Printing test: Each cartridge is individually tested before being packaged.

ASTM

Standard designed by remanufacturing industry professionals. Main requirements:

- Drop test.
- Optical density measurement.

DIN 33870

Standard set by the "Deutsches Institut für Normung" (Germany's Standards Institute), which regulates the quality and reliability of the recycling of monochrome Laser cartridges. Main requirements:

- Individual product traceability.
- Measurement of optical density and toner adhesion.
- AMES test to measure component toxicity.

NORDIC ECOLABEL

Scandinavian environmental label created in 1989.Main requirements:• Introduction of a system for returning used cartridges.

- Responsible management of production waste.• Identical level of quality to new cartridges.
- Provision of information for end users.

NF ENVIRONNEMENT

Official French label created in 1991 by AFNOR (France's Standards Agency). Main requirements:

- Identical level of quality to new cartridges.
- Limitation of the product's impacts on the environment throughout its lifecycle.

ISO/IEC 19752

The technical standard developed by the ISO Committee and International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) to measure the yield of Monochrome Laser cartridges, adopted by most monochrome Laser printer manufacturers.Main requirements:

- Tests in a controlled environment: temperature and humidity.
- Yield tests on nine of each type of cartridge using three different printers.

ISO/IEC 19798

The technical standard developed by the ISO Committee and International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) to measure the yield of Colour Laser cartridges, adopted by most colour Laser printer manufacturers. Main requirements:
